

CineHouse

CineHouse, a high-rise residential building that explores the boundaries between luxury and cinematic storytelling. Located in the heart of Langsuan Road, the building integrates a private luxury residence with a public art cinema, fostering a unique dialogue between culture and exclusivity. At its base, CineHouse hosts an art cinema, a vibrant space for film screenings and events. Designed to inspire creativity, the cinema invites both residents and the wider community to engage with cinematic arts, creating a lively public domain where ideas flourish. The transition from this public space to the private residences above is a dramatic staircase leading to an amphitheater space, acting as transitional zones or portals that guide movement and establish a sense of arrival, blurring the lines between public and private realms. The residential units above take inspiration from the spatial layouts and grandeur of classic theaters. Carefully curated interiors combine timeless elegance with cutting-edge design, offering residents a sanctuary of tranquility and sophistication. Large, curved windows that mimic the shape of film reels frame the panoramic views of Bangkok, allowing light and shadow to interplay, much like the visuals of film. By merging cultural engagement with private retreat, CineHouse balances the vibrancy of the city with the intimacy of home, crafting an immersive experience of modern luxury.
