Project Title:

Whispering-Boundary

For those looking to reconnect with nature amidst the chaos of modern life, the Whispering-Boundary design provides a multisensory escape. By providing a heaven that breaks down boundaries between the individual and the natural environment, this project highlights the therapeutic potential of the Solo House courtyard's natural components. The design expresses the idea that genuine domesticity is not solely derived from furniture or structural components, but rather from an inner selves, mental experience fostered by nature. Through barefoot exploration and a variety of surfaces, it immerses guests in textures, scents, and noises, making every step a grounded experience.
