

In the end, the design ended up creating the space as a route that allows people to flow into the building by removing the existing program on the mall front on the ground and second floor and creating a stair connection between three floors allowing people to use the atrium on the second floor as an indoor plaza create connection between indoor and outdoor plaza by each floor will mimic how the attention in Dongmen work. The new program design and insertion into the King world is to allow activities conducted in the plaza to create benefit to the store front within the building bring attention to the building and create a symbiosis dialogue between those who gain attention on the street to be able to gain even more attention on the mall while also beneficial the commerce inside the building