Short Project Description (100 words max.):

This playground, situated in Chulalongkorn University Centenary Park, aims to revitalize the space with a vibrant, purpose-driven design. Visiting the original playground revealed a large, underutilized area with only minimal play structures and worn-down seesaws, which limited its potential. My redesign reimagines the space to better serve children, particularly those from a generation shaped by the pandemic, who have often turned to digital entertainment and had limited outdoor play experiences. This has impacted their social skills and confidence, which a thoughtfully designed playground can help nurture. Here, children are encouraged to step out of their comfort zones by fostering communication, interaction, and teamwork
