

Huai Khwang Karden

Huai Khwang Karden is a residential project that reimagines urban living by promoting community and wellness within a green environment. Designed to counter the individualistic tendencies of modern urban life, the project creates shared spaces that foster connection and support healthy lifestyles. Features such as the co-kitchen, laundromat, and herb garden encourage residents to engage in communal activities like gardening, cooking, and dining together, turning everyday routines into opportunities for social interaction.

The landscape design integrates biophilic principles, providing expansive green spaces to enhance residents' connection to nature. Native plants and trees populate the courtyards, creating a calming microclimate that improves air quality. These green spaces function as communal “living rooms”, blurring the lines between indoor and outdoor areas. This residential project establishes a sense of belonging and well-being through its organic layout, transforming urban residential life into a nature-connected experience.
